EDITORIAL

We feel highly elated to publish and release the third issue of the college news letter. We have stepped into 4th year of subsistence. This year is going to be vital for the college in general and the students in particular. One of the most important objectives of the college for this year is to see our students placed in either reputed software or core companies for which we need to have a few flat forms in the name of On Campus and Off Campus Drives. In spite of being its herculean task, the college with added enthusiasm is under the way with appointment of a veteran placement officer to look after the placement activities. Being it known to everyone that rigorous in-house training is a must in materializing this kind of objective, the management in no way takes its step back to help the students by providing the requisite training at its own expense thus benefiting the student community. Students of this college are given exposure to the latest developments in the technology at regular intervals in the name of tours. The college has appointed the supplementary English faculty to facilitate its students to widen the communicative competence which is the sine qua non of campus appointments. We sincerely hope that the students of the college prove their competency with their creditable performance in campus interviews

Dr.Y.V.Narayana Principal, TEC

I am in high spirits to associate myself with TEC and serve it in my capacity as the Principal. The college since its birth is gifted with high quality infrastructure and state of the art branded equipment. I can, without fear of denial, say that it has acquired all the uniqueness of renowned colleges in the state. Kudos to the management for it's readily acceptance to the needs of the students and the staff such as Central air conditioning, generous scholarships, cool mineral water I, provision for additional Communicative English slots to ensure employability, talks on Personality Development to have smooth sail in their selected careers etc. I strongly do believe that these alone will not make an organization an outstanding one. In some cases, rigid rules of discipline, nonporous administration, a dry dispassionate attitude in complex matters and democratic enforcement of rigid teaching schedule shall become necessary in carrying out administrative tasks productively. Human values are what really sustain and endear an organization. Mutual consultation, common consent, concerned action and inclusive administration are what mark our modus operandi.

I am swollen with pride to have committed and deserving faculty and administrative staff. They are carefully chosen in to our team to realize the objectives of the institution with fervor. Their pay is on par with their seniority, proficiency and diligence. The norms set by the university are strictly followed without any deviation. Never was there an instance of compromise on even minor essentials or delay in procurement.

Students, our prized possessions, always received our highest consideration. Continual counseling, remedial sessions, interactive settings are some of the means we have adopted to achieve harmony on the campus and efficacious instruction in the classroom.

As a part of all these, we decided to release a news letter twice in a year to bring exposure of our activities happened in the campus. We sincerely hope that this news letter will bring interest and zeal among the students and staff to participate actively in all areas.

Principal Speaks

Here is the third issue of our college news letter. This will give you a bird's eye-view of what we have been doing. The first batch of our students is now in the third year. Their examination results over the last two years give us greater encouragement and higher hopes. we believe that our students will rise to our expectations and do us proud.

We are happier still that our counseling and Management seats are filled up. The Management has to be thanked for fixing an almost uniform fee for their seats in all branches. This is done to make the fee affordable and avoid haggling.

The construction of the college building is nearing completion. The library is enriched with increased number of volumes and latest editions. The labs have state-of-art equipment with all necessary accretions. We have a special lab for English and E-Class rooms for teaching and seminar halls. We thank the parents for admitting their students in our college reposing their trust in us.
